PENSACOLA THE MECCA.

Candidates Will All Be There on March 17th.

The committee of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which sent out invitations to all candidates for State offices to be present in Pensacola and speak at the grand picnic on St. Patrick's day, has received replies from Senator Tallaferra, John N. C. Stockton, Wm. S. Jennings and Wm. Call, candidates for the United States Senate, and Robt. W. Davis and Darnett H. Mays, candidates for governor.

These acceptances assure those who attend the picnic of a lively time when these orators occupy the stand. It will afford Senator T. Tallaferra, Governor Jennings and Mr. Stockton an opportunity of showing up each other's record, and they will no doubt grasp the opportunity eagerly.

Reports from counties all over West Florida are to the effect that there will be large delegations here from all of the counties, attracted by the big public speaking, and it will be a gala day in Pensacola.

Replies from other candidates for governor and other State officers are also expected.

Making Up Their Minds.

The time for the great political struggle of May 10 is rapidly drawing near, and in the meantime the people are doing quite a lot of thinking on their own hook. The Senatorial race seems to be the main topic of conversation, as far as State politics is concerned, for it is here that the thinking voter realizes the fact that this office must be filled by a man who is in a position to do us the most good. The State right at this time is on the eve of a new and brilliant day, brought about by a step made by Congress in giving us the Panama canal. What is the next move that should be made to make Florida the banner State of the South, and perhaps the Union? The question is answered in a nutshell: "Give us the Florida ship canal, so that our State can handle the shipping of the earth and enjoy the prosperity she so richly deserves." Whom are we to rely upon to secure for us this wonderful enterprise? Our Senators, of course; and that grand and noble friend of Florida, Senator James P. Tallaferra, has foreseen the dawn of another day and is tending his every effort to secure for us this much-needed improvement. He realizes that the time is now ripe for work, and he is working and working with a vim. Citizens, can we afford to reward his tireless efforts with political defeat and in his place put a raw man whom it will take years to even catch on to the run of things at Washington? Can we ignore that grand record that flashes over the width and breadth of Florida like a spotless searchlight, defying all opponents to step into its piercing rays? No; we believe that the fair-minded people of the State are going to give justice where it is due, and return Senator Tallaferra to Washington by an overwhelming majority. Now is the time of all times that we do need just such a man as Senator Tallaferra has proven himself to be.

We believe we are correct in stating that precious few Bradford people have allowed the wool to be pulled over their eyes by John N. C. Stockton, who, for political effect only, poses as the only "great I am" and savior of the people - the Jacksonville banker who denounces the rich and loves the poor. Who ever you see a man like Stockton hooking arms with the poor man, you can rest assured that it is not for the love that he bears him, but it is for that vote he wants.

Senator Tallaferra has been weighed in the scales of public opinion and has never been found wanting. Can we risk a new man right at the time an experienced and steady hand is needed to guide the ship of state over the shoals into the sunlit sea of prosperity? - Lake Butler Star.

COUGHED ALL NIGHT

BUT QUICKLY CURED BY CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.

"A few mornings ago Mr. J. G. Smithman, a good citizen of this place, came to the store for a cough medicine," says Dr. J. E. Farnell, of Naplesville, Ala. "He was so hoarse that he could hardly talk and said he had coughed all the night before. I sold him a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and told him that if it did not relieve him he might bring the bottle back and get his money. I saw him the next morning carrying the bottle to the store where he works and he told me he did him more good than any medicine he ever used." For sale by S. E. McGeachy & Co.

Infamous Desecration.

It is a shameful story that is told in the extracts quoted below from the utterances of Confederate veterans, expressing their righteous indignation at the recent despicable attempt of Governor Jennings to make political merchandise of the holiest and tenderest sentiments of patriotic reverence and love for the illustrious Gordon, by sending out, as a campaign document, a portrait of the dead hero with a brazen inscription upon it, and accompanied by a quantity of printed matter intended to capture votes.

Hon. S. M. Robinson, of Washington county, writes a letter to Jennings himself, in which he says:

"I received on the 13th inst., by mail, a picture of General John B. Gordon, stamped on the back, 'Compliments of W. S. Jennings.' Accompanying the picture were a lot of political documents, evidently intended to advance the political interest of yourself with Confederate soldiers. The recent death of General Gordon left us with bowed heads and sorrowing hearts, and his body had hardly been returned to the earth who gave it before the Governor of Florida, who is a candidate for United States Senator, is using his picture as an advertisement to further his political ambition. I hereby enter my protest against this insult to our sacred dead."

"The name, the memory, and the picture of General John B. Gordon are enshrined in the hearts of our Southland, and any attempt to use either for base political purposes, coming from whatever source it may, will be indignantly resented."

A "Bradford County Veteran," writing to the Times-Union, after mentioning the facts above related, says:

"Is not this the same Governor who was in Jacksonville when the body of our beloved Gordon passed through, yet remained at his hotel, not going to the union station to represent Florida in paying respect to the dead, despite the proclamation of Mayor Nolan calling upon the general public to pay this tribute of honor?"

"Is he not the same who upon second thought went to Atlanta and delivered an address at the memorial services over the body of General Gordon; then had that address distributed through Florida as a campaign document?"

"How, then, can any Confederate veteran, or the son of a veteran, vote for this man?"

Another veteran, writing from Chattahoochee to the Times-Union, says:

"The sentiment expressed by Capt. S. M. Robinson and others in your issue of the 23rd, under head 'Picture of General Gordon in the Campaign,' are the true sentiments of the Confederate veterans, not only of Florida, but in all our Southland, whose cause we espoused and lost. But we have not lost our honor nor the respect and veneration we have for our comrades and gallant chieftains who led us through fire, shot and shell in defense of a cause we thought was right. It is not strange, therefore, that we should protest against the desecration of the name or memory of our gallant General."

Gordon by fakirs or demagogues who seek to work the political rabbit-foot on the old veterans by distorting the sacred sentiment of love for a fallen comrade and chieftain into a selfish political pull for their votes.

"Yes, we all received the picture of General Gordon, and it is a good one, too. It is worthy of a higher and purer motive than that which prompted its free distribution by the Governor of a great State with his name and compliments stamped on bust in red ink, and enclosing his Atlanta memorial address, and other political documents in order that the real motive of the gift might be well understood."

"The question has often been asked by veterans why Governor Jennings, after declining to show the proper respect as Governor in Jacksonville when the remains passed through that city, should follow the procession to Atlanta to make a speech, when so many warm-hearted, eloquent veterans and old associates of General Gordon were deprived of speaking for want of time and space on the program."

"We all know the Governor as a natural orator and free speaker all the way from Tammany Hall, New York, to the Golden Gate of California, but this did not make his speech specially necessary on that sad occasion, when we consider the motive that now seems to have prompted it."

"As much as we may admire him as a citizen, a Governor and a politician, we don't think he can take the old Confederate out of his vote on this line."

And the Palatka News relates the following:

"The latest campaign effort of Governor Jennings is not doing to popularize his candidacy among old Confederate veterans, although it was designated for that purpose. The Governor has sent to old veterans in the State a picture of the late General John B. Gordon, on which is stamped in red ink 'Compliments of William S. Jennings.' Accompanying the picture is a copy of Jennings' speech on the death of the dead warrior, together with a pamphlet giving himself credit for what the State is doing by way of pensions for the old Confederates. The news witnessed an old Confederate open his package. He smiled as he looked upon the features of the popular hero; the smile faded as he noted the signature of the Governor; then he began to smell the rat. Then he looked at the next paper. It was the Governor's speech. Then he began to frown. Next he opened the leaflet showing what the Governor claimed he had done in the way of pensions for Confederate veterans; the frown grew thicker. There was silence for a moment, and the lips of the veteran trembled with rage. Then the storm broke: 'Once a fakir, always a fakir,' stormed the old soldier. 'Here is this man, in the interest of his candidacy for the United States Senate, thinks he can trade on the sacred sentiment of love with which all old Confederate veterans revere the memory of the gallant Gordon! If that don't beat anything I ever saw or heard of in charlatancy, I'm a d--.' What does Jennings care for the old Confederates? Not a blessed thing, except that he hopes to play upon the sentiments that bind them to the memory of their dead chieftain and secure their votes. He is a charlatan, a fakir, a demagogue, and I hope the old Confederate soldiers of Florida will get onto his curves and leave him out of all their future calculations for the Senatorship."

What the old soldiers will do to Jennings next Saturday when they meet at DeFuniak Springs, and at the primary in May, will, as the street boys say, be "a plenty."

William Shaffer, a brakeman of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says, "but I went to McChaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, at which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as busy as a clam." Russia and Japan at the Fair.

The Japanese certainly understand the art of playing to the grand stand.

Russia recently announced that she had changed her mind about the Louisiana Purchase exposition, and thought it was scarcely worth while to have an exhibit there after all. Whereupon Japan, evidently realizing the glorious opportunity to turn the thing into a good "ad," announced that she would take over the Russian ground space in addition to the 90,000 square feet of space she has already bargained to fill. It will be something of a strain on the Japanese treasury, we imagine, to go in so heavily at the fair at a time when Japan needs more money than it has now for war operations.

But it shows that Japan is alive to her opportunities, and understands the prime requirement of an advertising "stunt" - that it attract attention. It was rather an American kind of a thing to do this move of Japan's, and it shows that they have a peculiar sense of humor over there.

Czar Nicholas is reported to have stuck up his imperial nose when the matter of the St. Louis exhibit was brought to his attention again recently, and to have inquired in a rather supercilious tone where the town of St. Louis was located. We haven't enough scornful words in our vocabulary to tell Czar Nicholas just exactly how we feel about that. But Missouri will probably show him before this war is over. Some patriotic Missouri mule in the employ of the Mikado will kick one of Nicholas' regiments from Pink Yang to Tsushima, and then he'll be rather sorry that he tried to snub St. Louis. Missouri is not to be sneezed at with impunity, even by an emperor whose language is full of sneezes. - Journal.
